Alexander Armstrong, Ben Miller : Armstrong And Miller The Complete Radio Series before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Armstrong And Miller The Complete Radio Series:

Welcome to the strange world of Armstrong and Miller, which includes some comedy sketches with tough-guy cops in "Parsons and Lampkin" (and Lampkin's mate Steve), and there's an insiders view of National Trouser Day "because involvement should be as easy as a walk to the wardrobe." More highlights include some really macho rock climbers, and the corrupt world of mountaineering: is Everest the tallest mountain, or are there others they keep quiet about so they don't have to climb them? There's a track from rock legends Strijka, and you can also hear how Logarithm the world's most successful school band got together. Aided and abetted by Samuel West and Tony Gardner, this is the complete radio series, which contains all four episodes. 1 CD. 57 mins.

About the Author Alexander Armstrong is one half of the comedy duo Armstrong Miller who had a regular series on Channel 4 from 1997 to 2001 and then returned with three series of the BAFTA winning Armstrong Miller Show on BBC1 in 2007. Alexander's many straight acting roles have included Love Life, Life Begins, Mutual Friends, and the sitcom Hunderby. He frequently hosts Have I Got News For You?, he is the voice of Danger Mouse (which re-launches in autumn 2015) and the narrator of CBeebies cult hit Hey Duggee. Alexander has also recently become a presenter on Classic FM, but he is probably best known for presenting the highly successful daytime quiz show Pointless, now in its 12th season.
