Truncale I have been a lover of quote books all my life and I have a large collection of various kinds of quote books. I purchased this one (The Quotable Book Lover edited by Ben Jacobs Helena Hjalmarsson with a forward by Nicholas A. Basbanes) on for a bargain price. This 241 page soft cover book is a fantastic volume of numerous kinds of quotes all focused on writers, readers, collectors and other lovers of the written word. This text is organized into ten sections and includes quotes on the following topics: In praise of books, on writing, autobiography and biography, reading, libraries, literacy, censorship and the destruction of books, publishing and publishers, literature and collecting books. Trendl HungarianBookstore.com If you are looking up a book like, "The Quotable Book Lover," you are the curious sort. You chase randomness in Wikipedia. You follow links that are filled with interesting, but not necessarily useful facts. Now you want to read quotes by famous people about books. Many of these are forgotten in the great pile of great books these men and women have written, but each is fantastically delicious. "I took a speed reading course and read 'War and Peace' in twenty minutes. It's about Russia." -Woody Allen "Nothing stinks like a pile of unpublished writing." -Sylvia Plath "There are books of which the backs and the covers are by far the best parts." - Charles Dickens You get the idea. These are well organized, section-by-section, cleanly designed. Leave a copy of "The Quotable Book Lover" in the bathroom, and leave each morning feeling smarter. --Anthony Trendl anthonytrendl.com 8 of 9 people found the following review helpful. A Primer on Quotations about Books By Jerry Guild Books about Books always get my attention. I have a lot of them in my library and have written reviews on several. This little tome packs a lot between its covers. While it is only 5" X 7", it has 241 pages. It is a really good introduction to the subject, especially if it is your first to read about book quotes. It is also interesting to someone who has read several. The difference with this book is that it gives quotes from various areas of books. First, we get a Forward by Nicholas A Basbanes, one of the premier writers about books. Then 10 Chapters as follows; 1 In Praise of Books 2 On Writing 3 Autobiography and Biography 4 Reading 5 Libraries 6 Literacy 7 Censorship and Destruction of Books 8 Publishing and Publishers 9 Literature 10 Collecting Books So, you see it gives quotes on every aspect of books. Personally, I found some chapters better than others. Surprisingly, I found that the quotes by writers did not impress me as much as I expected. I enjoyed the chapter on Collecting books the most; and that did not surprise me as Nicholas Basbanes was involved with it; and he is one of the best. To someone new to Books about Books; you will be given the names of many other books on this subject. I kept waiting for some mention of one of my favorites, "The Anatomy of Bibliomania" by Holbrook Jackson. I had just about given up hope when it appeared on the last page. All in all, a great little book and sure to delight any book lover.

"Some books are unreservedly forgotten; none are unreservedly remembered." -W. H. Auden "A room without books is like a body without a soul." -Cicero "The proper study of mankind is books." -Aldous Huxley This collection of more than five hundred quotations captures the wisdom and wit of the most insightful things ever said about books, spoken and written by such legendary figures as: Aeschylus, Ernest Hemingway, John Ruskin, Woody Allen, Thomas Jefferson, Charles Scribner, Maya Angelou, Franz Kafka, George Bernard Shaw, Jane Austen, Helen Keller, Wallace Stevens, Francis Bacon, Malcolm X, Robert Penn Warren, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Groucho Marx, William Carlos Williams, William Faulkner, John Milton, Oprah Winfrey, Robert Frost, George Orwell, and W. B. Yeats. Encompassing the many facets of books and the pleasures and puzzlements they afford, The Quotable Book Lover includes chapters on writing, reading, and bookbinding, among other subjects. With its wide range of commentary, this compilation will surely entertain and enlighten bibliophiles everywhere.

.com The bibliophiles of the world are an erudite and witty bunch, especially the hundreds of quotable sages and wags whose bons mots are collected in this tribute to the written word. The authors of these insights, spanning centuries and continents, include Aeschylus and Lady Bird Johnson, Gustave Flaubert and Francis Bacon, Russell Baker and Isadora Duncan, Katharine Hepburn and Mark Twain, Pablo Picasso and Brad Pitt. The quotations offer witticisms as well as philosophical insights. Woody Allen quips, "I took a speed-reading course and read War and Peace in twenty minutes. It's about Russia." And Franz Kafka declares, "Books must be the axe to break the frozen sea inside me." Mark Twain reflects, "I like a thin book because it will steady a table, a leather volume because it will strop a razor, and a heavy book because it can be thrown at a cat." And Fran Lebowitz notes that "Magazines all too frequently lead to books, and should be regarded by the prudent as the heavy petting of literature." Aristotle observes that "To write well, express yourself like the common people, but think like a wise man." H.L. Mencken explains, "I write in order to attain that feeling of tension relieved and function achieved, which a cow enjoys on giving milk." And Thomas Mann opines that "A writer is somebody for whom writing is more difficult than it is for other people." In all, there are more than 500 quotations that pithily consider every aspect of authors, readers, collectors, and books. Entertaining and provocative, it is the sort of book that makes you sit friends down and read them just one more entry. In one such entry, Robertson Davies observes that "There are many people--happy people, it usually appears--whose thoughts at Christmas always turn to books. The notion of a Christmas tree with no books under it is repugnant and unnatural to them." This is just the sort of book to make such people remarkably content. --Stephanie Gold

From Library Journal
This volume is a fresh and handy addition to the already well-worn crop of quotation dictionaries. Publisher Jacobs and freelance journalist Hjalmarsson have compiled over 500 book-related quotes and divided them into ten thematic sections
Afrom "Reading" to "On Writing" to "Censorship and the Destruction of Books." Drawing from the words of historians, entertainers, political activists, educators, authors, and statesmen, the authors have included everything from Thomas Jefferson's familiar "I cannot live without books" to Katharine Hepburn's "What in the world would we do without our libraries?" Each quote is attributed to an individual, for whom some biographical information is given, and each section contains a brief introduction. The volume also contains an excellent foreword by Nicholas Basbanes, author of A Gentle Madness: Bibliophiles, Bibliomanes, and the Eternal Passion for Books. Although some of the older quotations collected here, like Jefferson's, appear in standard quotation dictionaries, most of the more recent ones don't. In addition, the compilation of so many quotations on book-related topics
Afrom "Libraries" to "Literacy" to "Literature"
Amakes this a uniquely valuable reference tool for patrons and librarians alike. Library staff and administrators might want to scan the book for quotations to use in promotional literature; for funding appeals; on library bookmarks, screensavers, or web sites; or in conjunction with traditional book displays. Recommended for all academic and public libraries.
