Jane Seymour, Jim Caviezel : The Twilight Zone Radio Dramas CD Collection 1 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Twilight Zone Radio Dramas CD Collection 1:

And, unfortunately, the producers picked the weakest of the four stories to begin the set. The actor in "A Hundred Yards Over the Rim" sounds like he just walked out of some ivy league acting school and not like a hardened pioneer who has been wandering through the desert for months on end. The next story, "The Lateness of the Hour," is ruined by a too-long explanation of the "daughter" being a robot at the end. Does it take that much explanation for today's "dumbed-down" society? I hope not. But the next two shows blew me out of the water. Lou Diamond Phillips is superb in "A Kind of Stopwatch." His over-the-top performance is one of the greatest I've ever heard in any radio drama. Then "Mr. Dingle, the Strong" followed and it was wonderful, too. Another plus is the original Twilight Zone soundtrack music which is used and other pains that are taken to maintain the flavor of the original classic TV series. I would suggest buying one collection and seeing if you like it before buying the second. This is not everyone's cup of tea, but the people who put these dramas together did the best they could and it's well worth a listen. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. From AudioFile This sparkling example of radio drama is a pleasant surprise. With top-grade production values and a generally excellent cast, this step into another dimension of time and space offers the light humor, whimsical sci-fi, and occasional drama that made the TV series a classic. The standout performance is "The Lateness of the Hour," starring Jane Seymour and James Keach. This prescient, tense, and gripping story has nary a slip, and even the kids can enjoy it. As a matter of fact, the entire well-designed set is family fare. So enter another dimension, a dimension not only of sight and sound but of mind. Next stop, The Twilight Zone! D.J.B.
